Post exam National Societies survey

Key insights

The survey results reveal several key insights:

- Nearly all respondents (14 out of 15) would advise other countries to organize an EHA Exam session, and most are either planning or considering organizing another session next year. There is strong interest in continued collaboration with EHA.
- The overall organization and communication of the EHA Exam are rated very highly, with an average score close to 5 out of 5, indicating widespread satisfaction among participating societies.
- While only a minority of countries currently offer such incentives, many countries are actively considering introducing formal benefits for passing the exam. Common motivations for organizing the exam include supporting professional development, providing international benchmarking, and encouraging continuous education in hematology.
- These findings suggest that the EHA Exam is valued for its educational impact and organizational quality, with growing momentum for broader recognition and benefits for participants.

4. Would you advise other countries to organize a session?
